

NPA Nursing Consortium

2022 Outstanding PACE Nurse of the Year Award

Call for Nominations

The National PACE Association (NPA) Nursing Consortium announces a call for nominations for the 2022 Outstanding PACE Nurse of the Year Award. The award distinguishes a PACE nurse who provides and promotes the highest quality nursing care for the frail elderly participants of PACE.

The recipient of this award will be a nurse currently employed in a PACE program who embraces and promotes the ideals of PACE, including person-centered care, empowerment of participants and families, and support for the interdisciplinary process. The nominee should be a person who enthusiastically promotes the role of the nurse on the PACE interdisciplinary care team and contributes significantly to PACE by developing, promoting, and ensuring quality, evidence-based nursing services.

The criteria for nominees are as follows:

- » has at least three years of experience in PACE;
- » provides expert and compassionate nursing care to frail elders;
- » enhances the PACE program, participants and interdisciplinary team; and
- » makes a difference in the life of PACE participants.

Each PACE organization may nominate one nurse.

Nomination Deadline: Aug. 5

Please complete the following form and submit it by Aug. 5. Submit your nomination to NPA Education at education@npaonline.org. Nominations will undergo a review and selection process by the NPA Nursing Consortium Awards Committee.

The award will be presented on Sunday, Oct. 9, during the Nursing Symposium at the NPA Annual Conference in Seattle, WA.
